There were only two cases tried during the week of any importance. The case of Commonwealth of Pennsylvania versus W. I. Harvey and John Bowden. Trespass. Plea not guilty. Case on trial at writing of these notes.

The other case was that of William Witmer of Benner Township versus Dora Witmer and J. C. Witmer. Action of Replevin. Plea non cepit and property.

The following is a brief statement of the facts in the case:—Some time prior to Oct., 1895 J. C. Witmer became bail for his brother-in-law by the name of Kline. The plantiff learning that he was about to be sold out at sheriff's sale told his son J. C. Witmer that as he owed him about $225.00 and also owed his wife Dora Witmer about $275.00 that he had better given them notes and have an execution issued and his property all sold. The notes were given to William Witmer who entered them in one judgment, had execution issued and sold all the property of defendant and bought it in.

The bill of sale was made out by the sheriff to William Witmer. The plaintiff contented that by reason of his having a bill of sale for the personal property of James Witmer that he was entitled the possession of it.

He stated that the property in question was worth from $1000.00 to $1200 according to the appraisement made by his nephew and himself some time in the early part of January 1902. He denied that the note upon which execution was issued were given to secure a debt due him by his son and also a debt due by Jas. to his wife, Dora Witmer.

The defendants alleged that the notes were given in the name of William Witmer on his statement and at his request so as to save the costs of two executions; that William Witmer stated that he would act as agent and attorney for Dora Witmer in the matter and represent her interests at the sale, etc., that immediately after the sheriff's sale William Witmer went to the house of James, his son and told Dora Witmer that he gave all the property that was sold to him that day, that he gave it to her because Jim could own nothing and that he had no use for the property.

After argument by counsel for the parties to the jury, and the charge of the Court the jury retired for the consideration and disposition of the case. They were out about twenty minutes and agreed upon their verdict. They found in favor of the defendant, William Witmer by his attorneys asked for a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted which will be disposed of at January Argument Court.

Fire at Grant Hoover's Residence.

On last Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock the home of Insurance Agent Grant Hoover on East Curtin street was discovered to be on fire. Owing to a scarcity of water it was some time before the flames which were confined to the interior of the building could be subdued and not before everything in the house was practically ruined.

There was no one at home when the fire occurred. Mrs. Hoover and daughter had just been taken to the hospital that day and Mr. Hoover had been called to Snydertown that afternoon for a couple of hours on business. There was a fire in the kitchen stove and some clothes had been left hanging around it to dry, and the fire undoubtedly started from this.

A piano and about $150 worth of furniture was removed to a vacant house across the street and that is all that was saved.

The house is owned by Samuel Gault and is considerably damaged inside. Mr. Gault's loss will probably be about $1000 covered by insurance. Mr. Hoover's loss will be close to $1 200 partially covered by insurance.

A Successful Hunting Party.

One of the most successful hunts of the season was that taken by the Zimmerman-Heinz hunting party from Hecla. In the party were Dave. Shuman, William and John Zimmerman and Perry and Sam Heinz and their camp was in the Scootac regions. They returned on Saturday after being out ten days and they say that deer are as plenty in that country as flies in summer time. Anyway they shot and killed ten deer, one of them an especially large buck. They also brought home some small game including eighteen pheasant and two wild turkeys.

Death of Levi Jones.

Levi Jones died Monday evening at the residence of his son-in-law, John Erb, of Philipsburg, aged about 74 years. He was a soldier in the Civil War, having served as a private in Co. A. 110th Regt. His wife died about 12 years ago. He is survived by the following children: George, Pittsburg; O. C. Hunter, W. Va.; William, McKees Rocks; Mrs. Blanche Herman, Johnstown; Mrs. John Erb, of Philipsburg; and Albert, Port Matilda.

—Dr. M. J. Locke's new home on Allegheny street will be ready for occupancy December 10th.

THE MONUMENT QUESTION

Interesting Statement Read By Gen. James A. Beaver,

AT THE MEETING LAST FRIDAY

Of the Centre County Soldiers and Sailors Monument and Curtin Memorial Association Held in the Court House

MAKES CLEAR THE SITUATION

The clear and lucid statement of Gen. Beaver which he read before the Centre County Soldiers Monument and Curtin Memorial Association last Friday helped to pave the way for the successful result of that meeting and made plain the manner in which this money has been raised and contributed.

For the benefit of our readers we publish it in full below.

To the Members of the Centre County Monument Association,

GENTLEMEN:

In considering the object for which you have been called together today, it is perhaps well, as preliminary thereto, to have a clear understanding of the situation which confronts us. There is evidently much misunderstanding in regard to the situation in the public mind.

By an act of assembly, approved July 18th, 1901, an appropriation of $10,000. was made by the legislature of Pennsylvania, providing for the erection of a statue of A. G. Curtin, Pennsylvania's great war governor, at some suitable place, at Bellefonte, in Centre county, the money thus appropriated to "be used for payment of the marker and the necessary expense of its location and erection, and for no other purpose whatever."

In order to carry out the provisions of the act, the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Senator of the 34th senatorial district of Pennsylvania and the President of this Association were named, as a commission. The commission has been organized and the expense connected with a survey for locating the monument has been paid out of the appropriation, so that the balance of the appropriation is available for the purpose for which it was made and has not lapsed, as it otherwise would have done, but for the expenditure above mentioned. It is clear, therefore, that this fund is not in any way under the control of our Association.

In addition to this sum, several thousand dollars have been raised, through the personal efforts of the President of this Association and some personal friends of Gov. Curtin in Philadelphia. This fund, however, is held in trust for a memorial to Gov. Curtin. It could, of course, be added to the appropriation made by the Legislature for his statue and these sums together would amply provide for this purpose.

For our soldiers' monument we have, in cash and in pledges, a sum not exceeding $3,000 to $4,000. Two Grand Juries have passed, upon the application of citizens under the act of assembly approved May 22nd, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five, as amended by the act of April 3rd, 1903, providing for an appropriation from the county treasury of ten thousand dollars toward the erection of a soldiers' monument. By the terms of this act, it is provided that the County Commissioners shall be authorized to erect, or complete any monument now partly erected but not completed, and maintain at the county seat a suitable monument in memory of the soldiers and sailors of the late war of the rebellion from said county." It will thus be seen that it is not obligatory upon the Commissioners of the County to make the appropriation. "They shall be authorized" to do so but are, of course, not compelled to do so. It will be noticed also under the provisions of this act of assembly that the monument is to be "in memory of the soldiers and sailors of the late war of the rebellion from said county." It is not an event, or a battle, or a series of battles, or a war which is to be commemorated. It is to be "in memory of the soldiers and sailors." It is well to keep this in mind. It has been the thought of this Association from the beginning that, in order to carry out the fair intent of this act of assembly, the names of the soldiers and sailors thus to be commemorated and the organization in which they served ought to be set out in full and, having this main object in view, all other features of a proposed monument were subordinated to it.

After much consultation and a conference of the entire Committee with Mr. George Gray Barnard, an eminent sculptor who was born in this town and has since attained great celebrity in his art, he was selected to make a design and the Committee instructed to commit the subject to him, without entering into any competition, The Committee on Design conferred with him at sundry times and finally secured a design which, in their judgment, met the requirements of our locality. This design was unanimously adopted by our Committee on Design and recommended for erection. It was discovered, however, subsequently, upon consultation with Mr. Barnard, that to carry out his design in full, including a statue of Gov. Curtin, would cost at least $50,000; and, although strenuous efforts were made to induce him to change the design, so as to enable it to be erected for a less sum, it was declared to be impossible for two reasons, first, that the effect of the sculpture would be very much lessened and, second, that the space for the names of the soldiers would be reduced, so as to make it practically impossible that all should be embraced thereon.

In view of the fact that, in the opinion of many of the members of our Committee, it will be impossible to raise the full sum of $50,000 it has been taken for granted that the Barnard plan must be abandoned. It has been in the mind of some of the members of the Association and of many citizens, as well as of committee of our Centre County Veteran Club, that it would be well to erect a memorial tower in connection with a building to be devoted to Grand Army, Daughters of the Revolution, Historical Society and Library purposes, and thus secure the wall space upon which the names of all the soldiers might be preserved and portraits and historical works relating to more ancient times might be gathered. At a joint meeting of our executive committee and of the committee from the Centre County Veteran Club, a committee was appointed to wait upon Mrs. Gov. Curtin to ascertain whether or not it would comport with her wishes to consider the propriety of using Gov. Curtin's house in the future as the basis of some such arrangement. The committee was met with a prompt and unhesitating refusal to consider such a proposition and we are left, theretofore, to turn to some other plan.

Under the amended soldiers' monument act of April 3rd, 1903, it is provided that, in counties having a population as computed by the United States census of the year one thousand nine hundred of over 500,000 and less than 1,000,000 inhabitants, said petition may pray for the erection of a memorial hall and, if approved as above provided, the county commissioners of said county shall be authorized to acquire, by purchase or by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, the necessary site and shall be authorized to erect and maintain thereon at the county seat a suitable memorial hall or building in memory of the soldiers and sailors of the late war of the rebellion from such county.

In view of this provision, it may well be doubted whether, in counties of less than 500,000 inhabitants, the commissioners would be authorized to expend the money in the erection of a memorial hall and it is well to consider this in the discussion of the entire subject. It is well known that the chairman of the Monument Association has been in favor of the erection of a memorial tower in connection with a building which could be used for a museum for war relics, for a meeting place for the Daughters of the American Revolution, for the headquarters of the Historical Society and for a public library. In this way, the funds for caring for a building and providing for the care and erection of our memorial could be easily provided. In view of the difficulties, however, of securing such a place and of the doubt as to the authority of the commissioners of the county to expend the amount asked for from the county treasury for this purpose, it may be doubted whether the plan is now practicable. Amendment could doubtless be had to the law which would make it so but this would add to the delay, already considered unreasonable by very many of our citizens.

What then is to be done?

1. Shall we have a statue of Gov. Curtin, distinct and separate, for which the money is in hand?

2. Shall we combine a soldiers' monument and a statue of Gov. Curtin in such a way as will enable the funds appropriated by the state and raised from the friends of Gov. Curtin to be used for that purpose? In order to this, it would be necessary to secure the assent of the commissioners named in the act of the 18th of July 1901, for the passage of which it may be well to say we are indebted to the indefatigable efforts of our friend, the then Senator from this district, Hon. William C. Heinle.

CONFESSED MANY MURDERS

Man Awaiting Execution in the Greensburg Jail.

FAKE STORY SAYS PRISON OFFICIALS

Originated in the City of Hold-ups and Concocted to Advance the Sale of Book Written by the Murderer.

CLAIMED TO HAVE KILLED EIGHTEEN

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Chief of Police O'Neill stated Monday that Charles Kruger, in jail at Greensburg, Pa., has confessed to the murder of Policemen Pennell and Devine in Chicago. According to Chief O'Neill, Kruger has also confessed to the murder of sixteen other persons in Kentucky and the East. The prisoner was arrested on the charge of burglary originally and has been sentenced to be hanged January 14, 1904.

The confession is worthy of much credit Chief O'Neill says, particularly in view of the fact that there is a faithfulness to details which would be almost impossible had the man not been present at the time of the crime. In his confession Kruger states that he came to Chicago in order to escape the consequences of crimes committed in the east, and reaching the city in a destitute condition he, with an accomplice, started on a hold-up tour when they encountered Pennell and Devine and the shooting ensued.

GREENSBURG, December 1.—The story emanating from a mysterious source to the effect that Charles E. Kruger, the degenerate, who is to be hanged on January 14 for the murder of a constable here, had confessed within a day or two that he murdered two Policemen in Chicago and as many as sixteen citizens of Kentucky previous to the murder committed here, is looked upon as quite a joke, even by the murderer himself.

It was given out Monday that the story has been concocted for the purpose of selling an alleged history of the murderer's life to be placed on sale in a few days.

WHOLE CAREER ACCOUNTED FOR.

Kruger's whole career has been accounted for from the day he arrived from Germany, at Homestead, Pa., four years ago. He spent three years in the Western Penitentiary for burglary and the balance of the time in prison at Canton, Ohio, and in the mines and jail in this county. An unusual sight meets the eye of the visitor at the prison where there appears large cards bearing these words:

"Photographs of Kruger for sale here."

Kruger has given up all hope of life and it is believed the story of the murder of so many people has been concocted by himself in order to sell his photograph and the trifling story of his uneventful life, seems to have no regard for truth and no one believes the story of the many crimes.

Union Thanksgiving Services.

Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock Union Thanksgiving services were held in St. John's Reformed church. A good sized congregation attended the service and representatives of most of the churches were present. The choir was enlarged and admirably supported by several voices from other choirs. Two anthems were sung, both of which were well rendered. Miss Twitmires voice was especially good in the solo part of the second anthem The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Holloway. His theme was "Gratitude" and in a very forceful and practical way the preacher showed the nobility of the heart and soul as it is moved by gratitude and the baseness of the life which knows no gratitude. The offerings amounting to nearly $18 00, were given to the Ladies Auxiliary of the Bellefonte Hospital for hospital work.

The following clergymen took part in the services: Revs. H. C. Holloway, D. D., Rev. W. H. Brown, Rev. J. E. Morris, and Rev. A. M. Schmidt, several of the pastors whose congregations united in this service were either ill or out of town.

Historical Society.

Immediately after the Curtin-Soldiers' committee adjourned, at 11:45, General Beaver requested those present to remain for a meeting to organize a County Historical Society, whereupon on motion of Rev. Dr. Wolf, of Spring Mills, Frederick Kurtz was unanimously elected chairman, with Thomas Mitchell, Esq., for secretary. General Beaver being called upon, in a very forcible speech of ten minutes, set forth the importance of having a County Historical Society, a matter often talked of in past years. A committee of five was then authorized, on motion of General Beaver, seconded by Capt. Fry, to draft a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, said committee to report at the next meeting. The hour of 12 o'clock having arrived the meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the chairman to transact further business and hear the report of the committee on constitution and rules.

The Popular Entertainment Course.

The manager of this Course Mr. J. L. Arnold of Harrisburg found he was losing money. Not having sold a sufficient number of tickets to warrant his fulfilling his carrying it on, he has notified us, that he will appoint a day and a place in the near future when he will refund the balance of the money to tickets holders. So that they will not be the losers. The W. C. T. U., had no connection whatever with the Course, they simply had contracted to rent Petrikin Hall for 6 nights to Mr. Arnold of the Central Lyceum Bureau, and of course, are losers, to that extent, but are in no way responsible to ticket holders, and had the course been properly managed, it would have been a success.

IT IS TO BE A MONUMENT

Important Meeting of Centre County Soldiers Monument Association.

HELD IN THE COURT HOUSE FRIDAY

Committee of Nine Selected With Full Power to Select Design, Choose Location and Erect the Monument to Curtin and Centre County Soldiers.

IT WILL COST ABOUT $30,000

The meeting of the Centre County Soldiers Monument and Curtin Memorial Association held in the Court House Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock was the most important in the history of this organization and a decided step toward accomplishing the building of a monument was taken.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman Gen. James A. Beaver. The secretary W. H. Musser was in his usual position. Among those present were Capt. W. C. Patterson, State College; Dr. D. M. Wolf, Spring Mills; Capt. W. H. Fry, Pine Grove Mills; J. R. Pheasant, Howard; Capt. George M. Boal, Centre Hall; Capt. C. T. Fryberger, Philipsburg; Dr. J. A. Thompson, Stormstown.

In the beginning of the meeting Gen. Beaver read a statement which cleared away the mist which has surrounded the monument question and paved the way for the successful step taken later. He said that there was a good deal of misunderstanding about how much money had been raised and for what purpose. He explained that $10,000 had been appropriated by the legislature for a monument to Gov. Curtin; four thousand had been raised by personal friends of Gov. Curtin for the same purpose. About four thousand had been subscribed to the committee for a Soldiers and Sailors monument and lastly two Centre county grand juries had approved an appropriation of ten thousand dollars by the County Commissioners for a Soldiers and Sailors monument. Now it is necessary to bring these interests together. He then told why the George Gray Barnard design had to be abandoned. It would have cost $50,000 and was entirely to large for the location, namely the Diamond.

The desire to purchase the Curtin mansion for a Memorial Hall had met with a refusal from Mrs. Curtin and Gen. Beaver communicated this fact to the meeting also. He stated that if the committee appointed by the legislature, the County Commissioners and the Centre County Veterans could get together things would move along more satisfactorily.

Capt. W. C. Patterson thought the two should be combined in one monument.

W. H. Musser was in favor of a $15,000 monument if nothing better could be had but by all means do something.

Gen. Beaver is a member of the committee appointed by the legislature to handle the $10,000 appropriated by the state and he expressed himself favorable to uniting the interests. The other two members of this committee are Governor Pennypacker and Senator Patton.

Senator Heinle who secured the $10,000 appropriation from the legislature also spoke in favor of combining the two funds and erecting one monument. He believed that was the intention of the legislature that passed the appropriation

County Commissioners Abram V. Miller and Philip H. Meyer, Gen. John I. Curtin, S. H. Williams and James Harris spoke along the same lines.

Finally Capt. Fryberger moved that an executive committee of nine be appointed consisting of the three members of the Harrisburg committee, the three County Commissioners and three to be selected from the Centre County Monument Association with full power to locate, secure design and build a monument to the memory of Gov. Curtin and the Soldiers and Sailors of Centre County, the cost to be about thirty thousand dollars.

This motion was seconded by W. H. Musser and carried unanimously.

The association then elected Capt. C. T. Fryberger of Philipsburg, John A. Daley, of Romola; and Gen. John I. Curtin, of Bellefonte on this committee.

This ended the public meeting and later a meeting of the newly appointed committee was held in Gen. Beaver's office to perfect plans for future action.

This action of the Monument Association meets with hearty approval on all sides and the movements of these nine men in whose hands the erecting of this monument now lays will be watched with decided interest.

The committee is as follows: Governor Samuel W. Pennypacker, Gen. James A. Beaver, Senator A. E. Patton, Abram V. Miller, John G. Bailey, Philip H. Meyer, Capt. C. T. Fryberger, John A. Daley and Gen. John I. Curtin.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS.

Some of the most anxious hours of a mother's life are those when the little ones of the household have the croup. There is no other medicine so effective in this terrible malady as Foley's Honey and Tar. Was Venus the Star of Bethlehem?

"What was the Star of Bethlehem?" is a question that has puzzled mankind for many ages. Many believe that it may have been a perfectly natural phenomenon, unusual enough to deceive the Magi into the belief of a miraculous sign. The reappearances of the planet Venus are separated by intervals of 584 days. The date of Christ's birth is not certainly known within four years, and it is entirely possible that, when the birth occurred, the planet Venus may have been nearing her brightest phase as an evening star. To the Magi traveling across the desert toward the West she would have appeared every evening shinning with extraordinary splendor in the direction of Palestine growing brighter as they approached. If their arrival in Palestine coincided nearly with the period of her inferior conjunction with the sun, she would be at her brightest when they neared the mountains of the Holy Land, would seem early in the evening to touch the nearby horizon where Bethlehem lay, as if to indicate to them that there was the end of their journey, and very shortly after their arrival would disappear from the sky, being swallowed in the overpowering rays of the sun. The nature of Venus might easily have been unknown to the "Wise Men." Their wisdom was doubtless of a speculative, metaphysical, and mystical character, which would readily accept as miraculous an unusual phenomenon that seemed to have some special relation to themselves.

Clendenen Murder Still Unsolved

There is nothing new to report today in the Clendenen murder case. Several rumors of clues having been found were heard, but were soon disapproved by investigation. The fact of the matter is that while the detectives are still hopeful of success, notwithstanding the fact that the men on whom public suspicion rested, could not have committed the crime, and that the case is a most difficult one to fathom. As is to be expected, the theorists are still at work in the surrounding communities, but evidence, not ideas, is what is desired.

Butler Schools Closed.

All the schools of Butler borough were closed this week for an indefinite time. On Monday morning nineteen of the sixty-five teachers and 600 of the 2,500 scholars were reported sick or detained at home by sickness. The principal ailment is typhoid fever, though the discovery of one pronounced case of varioloid caused the closing of the South Side school, the child having attended several days after the first symptoms of the disease appeared.

Crazed By the Election.

It is announced that Robert E. Forbell, a prosperous farmer of Bayside, Long Island, disappeared on election night, deserting his well stocked farm, his wife and six children. "His mind was unbalanced by the result of the election, on which he had bet heavily."

If this had happened to a woman voter in Colorado, would it not have been quoted from one end of the country to the other as proof that women are too excitable to be trusted with the ballot?

In Colorado, women have been voting for ten years, in Idaho for seven, in Wyoming for thirty-four, and for a considerable time in Great Britain, New Zealand and Australia. But it has never yet been reported that any women has gone insane and deserted her husband and family in consequence of excitement over the election returns.

The History of Influenza.

There is nothing new or novel about the prevalent complaint of influenza. It prevailed in Europe as early as the beginning of the 16th century and doubtless went back much further. The first time this name was used in English-speaking countries was in 1743, when the London Magazine in that year reported that it was epidemic in Rome. The word seems to have been used originally in Italy, apparently from the notion of some astral influence, of visitation or outbreak assailing many persons at the same time and place In 1504 it was known as the "influenza dicatarro." Later, the old French term "la grippe" became popular. Queer remedies have been given for the epidemic, which has been a Godsend to many quacks. Charles Moritz, in his Travels Through Many Parts of England in 1782, speaks at Katterfelto, who Moritz says, "demonstrated to the people that the influenza is occasioned by a small kind of insect, which poisons the air; and a nostrum, which he pretends to have found out to prevent or destroy it, is eagerly bought of him." This looks like a lucky long shot at the microbe! Even in the present day there is a belief in parts of England that if some hair is cut from the hollow of the neck of the patient and placed in some milk given to an animal to drink the patient recovers, while the animal will die. It is necessary for the person administering the milk to observe secrecy.

Facts About the New State.

Republic of Panama is pretty large, its population is about 300,000; its area is 31,571 square miles, or nearly equal to that of the state of Indiana—its inhabitants are Spanish, Indians and Negroes and some from Europe and the United States The commerce of Panama amounts to $3,000,000, per annum. The principal ports are Panama, on the Pacific coast and Colon, on the Atlantic side, and these ports are visited annually by more than 1,000 vessels, which land over 1,000,000 tons of merchandise and nearly 100,000 passengers, chiefly for transfer over the Panama railway, forty-seven miles in length, connecting the Pacific port of Panama with the Atlantic port of Colon.

Panama is connected with San Francisco by a weekly steamer schedule and with Valparaiso with a weekly steamer schedule. Two passenger and two freight trains leave Panama daily for Colon and Colon daily for Panama. The time for passenger trains over the forty-seven miles of railway is three hours.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Government Printer Kills Wife and Suicides.

IMPLICATED IN GIRL'S DEATH

Reading of the Arrest of a Physician Connected With the Case He Killed Wife and Then Took His Own Life.

OTHER IMPORTANT NEWS OF THE DAY

Washington, November 27.—Robert J. Hale, a compositor in the government printing office, killed his wife and then committed suicide at their home in this city at an early hour Thursday morning. Hale had been under suspicion of being responsible for the condition of a young woman who, it is claimed, died a few days ago as the result of an operation performed at a sanitarium near this city. He was not related to the girl, but passed as her cousin and as such visited her at her rooms.

When he read the announcement in the morning paper of the arrest of the physician charged with causing the girl's death, he wrote a number of notes, and proceeding to his wife's room, killed her and himself.

HEADACHE POWDER KILL.

New York, November 27.—Mrs. Mary Cusick and Mrs. Julia Ward, who boarded with Mrs. Cusick, died here yesterday under circumstances indicating death from some poison, the nature of which has not been determined. The women had complained of severe headaches during the day and each took a headache powder procured from a nearby drug store, soon thereafter becoming violently ill and dying in three hours. It is thought that the powders may have affected their hearts.

TO GET EDUCATION.

Washington, November 27.—W. A. Sutherland, in charge of the Phillippine boys who have come to the United States for education in American methods, called yesterday upon Colonel Edwards, chief of the Insular Bureau, to report the disposition he has made of his charges. He brought to California 96 Filinino boys of the average age of 18 years and he has placed them in various families in Southern California, where they will take advantage of the nearest educational facilities until next summer, when they will be brought to St. Louis as part of the Philippine exhibit at the Exposition. When this is closed the youths will be brought East to complete their education to which they must devote four years.

They are pledged to enter the Philippine civil service upon their return to the islands and must remain in that service at lease four years. The boys start with a solid foundation in their studies, several of them being graduates of the Manila University, and all speak English.

There have been times when the wild beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the woman cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, by curing the womanly diseases which undermine the health and sap the strength. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"When I first commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y. "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, then I began taking your medicine. After taking the first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

A DOG'S TALE

By MARK TWAIN.

[From Harper's Magazine For December.]

My father was a St. Bernard, my mother was a collie, but I am a Presbyterian. This is what my mother told me. I do not know these nice distinctions myself. To me they are only fine, large words meaning nothing. My mother had a fondness for such. She liked to say them and see other dogs look surprised and envious, as wondering how she got so much education.

But indeed it was not real education; it was only show. She got the words by listening in the dining room and drawing room when there was company and by going with the children to Sunday school and listening there, and whenever she heard a large word she said it over to herself many times and so was able to keep it until there was a dogmatic gathering in the neighborhood; then she would get it off and surprise and distress them all, from pocket pup to mastiff, which rewarded her for all her trouble. If there was a stranger he was nearly sure to be suspicious, and when he got his breath again he would ask her what it meant. And she always told him. He was never expecting this, but thought he would catch her, so when she told him he was the one that looked ashamed, whereas he had thought it was going to be she.

The others were always waiting for this and glad of it and proud of her, for they knew what was going to happen, because they had had experience. When she told the meaning of a big word they were all so taken up with admiration that it never occurred to any dog to doubt if it was the right one, and that was natural, because for one thing she answered up so promptly that it seemed like a dictionary speaking, and for another thing where could they find out whether it was right or not? For she was the only cultivated dog there was.

By and by, when I was older, she brought home the word "unintellectual" one time and worked it pretty hard all the week at different gatherings, making much unhappiness and despondency, and it was at this time that I noticed that during that week she was asked for the meaning at eight different assemblages and flashed out a fresh definition every time, which showed me that she had more presence of mind than culture, though I said nothing of course.

She had one word which she always kept on hand and ready, like a life preserver, a kind of emergency word to strap on when she was likely to get washed overboard in a sudden way. That was the word "synonymous." When she happened to fetch out a long word which had had its day weeks before and its prepared meanings gone to her dump pile, if there was a stranger there of course it knocked him groggy for a couple of minutes, then he would come to, and by that time she would be away down the wind on another tack and not expecting anything. So when he'd halt and ask her to cash in I (the only dog on the inside of her game) could see her canvas flicker a moment—but only just a moment—then it would belly out taut and full, and she would say, as calm as a summer's day, "It's synonymous with supererogation," or some godless long reptile of a word like that, and go placidly about and skim away on the next tack, perfectly comfortable, you know, and leave that stranger looking profane and embarrassed and the initiated slatting the floor with their tails in unison and their faces transfigured with a holy joy.

TATTOO ON EYEBALL.

Unique Operation to Make Eyes Match In Color.

An oculist recently tattooed the picture of an eye on the right optic of William Summers of Grenbo, Wyo., says an Omaha dispatch. This was done in india ink for the purpose of making it match its mate in color. For a good many years the right eye has been white.

When Summers was a youth he was frequently poisoned by poison ivy. Once when a finger was swollen with the poison he rubbed his eyes with his knuckles, and the poison was communicated to the eye. It became colorless and the sight was lost.

The surgeon said that his work was the same as if he had tattooed a ship or an anchor on a person's arm.

Married Twice In Five Minutes.

A young man from San Francisco met his affianced bride in Abilene, Kan., by appointment. They went to a minister and were married with the usual short ceremony, says the Abilene Chronicle. As the groom drew a roll of bills from his pocket to pay the preacher, the wedding ring, which he had forgotten, fell to the floor. The bride looked at the ring regretfully, though she said nothing of her disappointment at not being wedded by the ring ceremony. The preacher caught her look, however, and told the couple to stand up before him. Then he married them all over again, using the ring ceremony, to the very palpable pleasure of the young woman. As the pair left the parsonage the groom was heard to say, "Well, I guess we got all that was coming to us that time."

UNIQUE FOOTBALL TRICK.

Indian Player Hid Ball Under Sweater and Scored a Touchdown.

In a game full of the wildest excitement and witnessed by 12,000 people Harvard barely defeated the Carlisle Indians on Soldiers' field at Cambridge the other afternoon by a score of 12 to 11, says the New York World. At the end of the first half the visitors led with a score of 5 points and at the beginning of the second half scored a touchdown on the most unique trick play that has ever been seen in Cambridge Thus, with a score of 11 points against her and the second half partially over, the crimson started to win out. Harvard scored her two touchdowns and Marshall kicked the goals, which gave the winning point.

Carlisle got the ball in the first half on forcing Harvard to punt and from the forty yard line carried it down to within ten yards of the crimson goal. Here Harvard braced, and little Johnson, instead of punting, had the ball passed back and held for a place kick. The little Indian leader kicked a beautiful goal. There was no more scoring in this half, but on the very first kick off in the second half the Indians got the ball and, gathering in a mass, concealed the pigskin for a second, while it was tucked up under the back of Dillon's sweater. Harvard did not fathom the trick, and Dillon, with a clear field and the ball securely tucked up under his sweater, started down the gridiron and over the line, where he reached around and pulled the pigskin out and touched it to the ground. Johnson kicked a goal.

The run by Dillon was decidedly the feature of the game and will undoubtedly give rise to a vast deal of discussion. The instant he caught the ball the entire Carlisle team clustered about him so that no one could see what was being done. The Harvard team threw themselves on the massed Indians just as the latter had begun to move down the field well bunched. While the crimson players were searching for the ball Dillon came out of the crowd entirely empty handed and had gone thirty or forty yards before a single person in the crowd realized that he had the ball. As he neared the Harvard goal the football was seen bulging beneath his sweater behind his back. The Harvard undergraduates fairly gasped, while the rest of the spectators shrieked with laughter. Coach Cranston made a protest, but the play was allowed. There is no rule covering the play.

TRAP FOR TERRAPIN.

Latest Device Is Made of Wire on Lines Similar to the Eelpot.

Every season some new device is invented for catching or trapping the toothsome Maryland terrapin, particularly that delight of the epicure, the diamond back terrapin, says a Baltimore correspondent of the New York Times. Over on the Eastern Shore the latest device is a trap constructed about on the same principle as an eelpot. The body of the trap is made of wire and the entrance of twine so woven that the terrapin easily enter, but find it impossible to get out. The trap is then filled with bait, for the most part crushed crabs, and set in the marsh where terrapin have been located. The terrapin hunter walks through the marsh and discovers his game by the protruding heads, as the terrapin are compelled to come to the surface to breathe.

Many of them are drowned in these traps, and one hunter states that he has seen twenty-two drowned in this manner during the present summer. A terrapin cannot live in one of these traps over three hours, and thus the hunter must be on the move constantly if he would preserve his game alive. Terrapin are also being caught in purse nets, but these cannot be used in shallow streams successfully on account of the numerous stumps of trees on the bottom.

MRS. FISH'S APHORISMS

Society Leader Says America Must Have an Aristocracy.

CLAIMS EQUALITY WILL NEVER DO

Ruler of Newport's Summer Colony Does Not Believe In Being Too Democratic—Intends to Enter Politics—Thinks the United States Is Making Itself Ridiculous In Regard to Titles.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, wife of the president of the Illinois Central railroad, leader of New York's Four Hundred and one of the rulers of Newport's summer colony, declared in a breezy interview at St. Louis the other day that all persons are not equal, that the United States is to have an aristocracy, that the vulgar new rich are invading Newport, that Americans make themselves ridiculous over foreign counts and dukes and that Miss Goelet's family paid $2,000,000 for the privilege of marrying her to the Duke of Roxburghe, says the Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Fish in consenting to the interview said:

"Now, be careful what you say about me, and do not write any ridiculous thing, what you newspaper people call 'a pipe.' Just write it as I said it."

These are some of the things she said:

"I should not like to have to eat with negroes.

"I do not believe in equality; it would never do.

"There always will be classes in this country.

"We are coming more and more to have an aristocracy and a common people.

"I do not believe in being too democratic.

"Europe is older than we, and she cannot get along without the different classes.

"There are many different kinds of people, and they cannot all be equal in any country.

"What makes our social life so stupid is that the women do nothing but dress and talk nonsense. They ought to get into politics. Just think what influence a woman in a high position in Washington could have—the wife of the president or something like that."

"Why don't you get into politics, Mrs. Fish?"

"That's what I'm trying to do. I've been trying for two years. American women ought to do something—that's the reason the Lord gave them brains—and I for one intend to know something about what interests me most, and that is politics."

Speaking of gowns worn by American women Mrs. Fish said: "I think that in dress the American women imitate Europe too much. American makers build just as handsome and as costly gowns as the Parisians, and if some one would only start the pace American gowns would be worn."

Mrs. Fish was asked about the decline of Newport as the social hub of the United States. She replied:

"Newport is not declining. True, it is being invaded by vulgar new rich people of the parvenu class, but the higher classes still are there.

"Society people do not run after the sensational and do not want something new and out of the way all the time.

"This impression is a false one and was created solely by the press.

"For instance, Harry Lehr and his monkey function, which is said to have occurred at my cottage.

"I never heard of anything quite so ridiculous in my life. It never occurred, and all these other stories are exaggerations.

"Newport just now is paying too much attention to foreign lords.

"I think that this country is making itself ridiculous in regard to titles.

"The marriage of Miss Goelet to the Duke of Roxburghe is the latest piece of this sort of folly.

"They paid down $2,000,000 to do it.

"Of course the duke is not as bad as some foreigners who have married American girls, for he has some money—about $60,000 a year—but that is not much for people in his station.

"I think it foolish."

The Sultan's Press Agent.

American citizens have held many odd positions of trust under foreign governments, but a man who is destined to occupy a unique one is Joseph Morcombe of Cedar Rapids, Ia., the newly appointed press agent to the sultan of Turkey. He is a western newspaper man, who has spent many years in a study of the Mohammedan nations and of conditions in eastern Europe. Chekib Pasha, Turkish minister to the United States, was led to commend Mr. Morcombe for the confidential position. Mr. Morcombe is forty-eight years old.

A Bishop In Favor of Cremation.

The bishop of Worcester, England, at the opening of the crematorium in Birmingham recently by Sir Henry Thompson wrote that he desired when he died that his body might be reduced to ashes as rapidly as possible, so that the dead should do no harm to the living, says the Church Eclectic. He saw no serious Christian argument against such a practice, while from the sanitary point of view it had enormous advantages.

AWFUL BLOW FOR WOMEN.

Lack of Faith Must Result From a Recent Disturbing Discovery.

In these days when there is trepidation in financial circles and the fear that some foolish or malicious story may discredit the soundness and reliability of any institution, no matter how stable and enduring it may be, it cannot lighten the burden of apprehension to learn that confidence has been shaken in another of the great depositories of the thrifty, one particularly confided and trusted in by feminine depositors, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Mrs. Frances Sterling of New York placed $35,000 worth of jewels and $400 in money in a small flat box in her stocking, on starting from Washington for her home at the Powhattan apartments, New York, and on arriving there found that the box had worked a hole in the stocking and was lost.

This incident will appall thousands in all parts of the country and cannot fail to convince women that their faith in that last resort in times of financial stress is but a rope of sand. Banks may break, trust companies refuse to disburse, even safety deposit boxes be subject to burglary, peculation and rapine by mobs, but never has this repository of ladies' savings been looked on with dubiety. It has stood the test of nearly half a dozen panics. When the monetary storms of '37, '57, '73 and '93 swept the country not a stocking broke. In such high esteem were they held by those who depended upon them and had dealings with them that there is no recorded instance of a run on them. There they stood, an example to all mankind—and womankind—of an honorably guarded trust. But now what are we to think? One of these institutions has failed, and failed utterly. It will not repay a cent on the dollar. It is the most disastrous failure in proportion to the capital involved that has been known in our national history. No excuses are offered. The money, the jewels, even part of the stocking, are gone. We stand crushed before such an instance of betrayal of trust. Is there no thing safe?

No More Dormitories.

The word dormitories as applied to the places where young women at college live has been abolished by order of the women deans of the various western universities who were recently in session in Chicago. Hereafter they will be called "halls of residence," which is a fine, mouth filling phrase.

Battle Hymn of Panama.

From no mountain height of freedom
Was our glorious flag unfurled,
And we sought no grand stand plaudits,
Firing shots heard round the world.
Times have changed since gory heroes
Of their fights for country bragged;
Mid no war shouts rose our standard.
But our courage never flagged.

For we sat in secret conclave
When we built us up a state,
Sons of freedom, cool and cautious,
Subtle, keen and up to date;
Laid our wires with skill artistic,
Planning 'gainst untimely slips,
With much faith in business methods
And an uncle who has ships.

No long list of dead and wounded
Glorifies our virgin scroll,
Though against the constitution
We set out for freedom's goal.
But we've shown how modern heroes,
Free from wild unseemly hate,
Can, without undue excitement,
Build republics while you wait.

HIGH LIFE IN A FLAT.

Features of Alfred Vanderbilt's Six Room Apartment.

YEAR'S RENT WILL BE $6,000.

All Comforts and Conveniences Are Provided by the Landlord For the Young Millionaire and His Family In Their New Abode at New York. Servants of House Have Distinct Livery.

Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, the richest young matron in the United States, will keep house in a six room flat in New York. The rent is $6,000 a year, and there are thousands in New York who pay more than that.

The Vanderbilt flat is in Madison avenue, 161 and 163. It is midway between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, sandwiched in between a row of boarding houses on the east side of the way. The apartment house rejoices in the euphonious name of the Warrington.

It was only a few weeks ago that the Vanderbilts, principally for novelty's sake, made up their minds to try a flat for the winter. They have been staying in Newport and have decided to return there early in the spring, after two or three months in town and perhaps a flying trip down south during the raw weeks of March and early April. As a matter of fact, two apartments have been knocked into one so as to make rooms of the necessary size. Whether the multimillionaire tenants are in Europe or Kamchatka, the flat will be swept and dusted daily, to be ready for immediate occupancy.

Mrs. Vanderbilt already has settled upon the arrangement of the six rooms at her disposal. She has decided to dine downstairs at a restaurant whenever she and Mr. Vanderbilt are at home, so there is no dining room problem. There are in the Warrington establishment a head valet and assistants to care for the men's clothes and to do the hundred and one odd little things needed every day by a man of fashion. A full corps of maids is also at the call of the women of the house. The Vanderbilts will have only breakfast in their suit.

Dinner will be taken in the public dining room, where to each family a separate table is assigned. It looks more like a dining room of some big private residence. A waiter will be detailed to attend to them alone. Fresh flowers will be provided for the table at each meal, and all butter, eggs, milk and vegetables they require will come from a private farm owned by the apartment house.

The south room of the suit will be the drawing room and the one adjoining a library and den. The two north rooms of the suit will be her room and Mr. Vanderbilt's. The baby and the nursemaid will have the two rooms in the rear, and the other servants will be assigned to rooms in the servants' quarters on the top floor. There is a bathroom on each side of the hall.

The servants of the house have a distinctive livery, such as private families of wealth now require. The men who will wait on the Vanderbilts wear clawhammer coats of brown cloth tricked out with brass buttons.

WOMAN'S CLUB INFLUENCE.

Organizer of Clubs Says They Don't Educate Her Sex.

The education of woman by the club method to prepare her to assume a higher and more responsible place in the world's affairs has been declared by one of the most prominent club women in Colorado to be a flat failure. Mrs. Sophia Lovejoy Dickinson, who has probably done as much as any one woman inorganizing clubs, in an interview at Denver said:

"Such women as Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton little dreamed of the extent of the club movement which would follow their work. Their suggestion was not a new sphere for women, but a broader outlook, a better education, till she was competent to take her share of the world's work. They would see woman develop in all life's relations—the self, home, social and civic relation.

"As a class women are conservatives. They closely follow race inheritance. What they feel is expected of them they do. The world expects them to be honest, therefore they do not steal large amounts nor forge signatures. The world expects them to be virtuous, and some are. Whether they are equally moral may well be questioned. Their idea of truth is often very feminine, and their growing tendency to kleptomania is alarming. The world has not demanded much beyond the self and home relation, and only a narrow view of these.

"The average woman's club is too indefinite, too anxious to please men, too busy, bustling, too self centered to allow the members to help on the real and important work of the world. Women are self deceived; they think they are in earnest, but rarely are; they are interested in their relation to things, but not in the thing itself. They are much like children in the way they conduct business and assume responsibility, and their sense of an obligation is often very faulty. If the weaknesses which I have enumerated are not suppressed, the entire club movement will degenerate into a social function."

To keep the whole German army in the field for a week would cost $30,000,000.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2. 1903.

Minister Varilla has received advices from Panama informing him that the canal treaty will be ratified by the Junta and returned to Washington without delay. There is no opposition to the treaty on the Isthmus. When the ratified treaty reached Washington, it will be sent at once to the Senate.

General Reyes, the Columbian representatives, has arrived in Washington. If his credentials are in order, he will be received by the President. His purpose of saving Panama to Columbia is, of course, a forlorn hope His government's threats of raising 100,000 to fight the United States are not taken seriously. Probably his missions will end in an attempt to secure a money indemnity for Columbia and to force Panama to assume a pro-rata portion of Columbia's debt. In the latter demand he will be supported by England and the European governments. In fact the first work of Sir Mortimer Durand, the new British ambassador, who has just arrived here, will be to press the claims of English bondholders, that Panama assume a fairshare of Columbia's debt. The fact that the representations will be made to our government, shows that the dependent status of Panama is recognized by England.

When it was announced in the Senate that Senator Hanna was to succeed Senator Morgan as chairman of the Committee on Inter-oceanic Canals, the aged champion of the Nicarsguan route rose and, in a speech which lasted the greater part of two sessions of the Senate, made a most bitter attack on the President and on his policy in Panama. Before he finished his sarcastic remarks, the Senator had to request the privilege of speaking from his seat. By declaring that President McKinley favored the Nicaraguan route, he got in a dispute with Senator Hanna, who showed that McKinley had no perference in the matter. Senator Morgan declared, "Hereafter November 3, 1903 will be a saint's day, to be celebrated by all filibusters who destroy government in the interests of peace.

Senator Newlands' invitation to Cuba to join the Union was opposed by Senators Lodge, Hale and O. H. Platt, who pointed out, in the debate, that such an invitation would be looked upon as a command, that it would expose this country to the suspicion of desiring to annex Latin American territory, and that it would weaken the hands of the present administration of Cuba, under which the island had enjoyed such remarkable prosperity. Many interesting and important points were brought out in the discussion. Senator Hale said that he believed that the men who were listening to him would like to see Canada and the United States united. Senator Lodge expressed the same sentiment, by saying he hoped all the European flags on this continent, would return to Europe as did Spain's. Senator Platt, of Conn., the author of the Platt amendment, declared that this government exercised no protectorate over Cuba, and that Cuba was not our ward. Quoting McKinley, he said, "We are neighbors, we must be close friends." Senator Teller said that without entering into the debate, he wished to state positively that Cuba was no way a dependency of the United States, and that any international lawyer would declare such a contention ridiculous. Senator Newlands argued the trade advantages Cuba would gain by union, and said that his resolution considered merely Cuba's welfare, that the acceptance of the invitation would be decided by popular vote and that the Cubans had therefore no cause for alarm.

Speaker Cannon refused to consent to the adjournment of Congress, before the regular session, as the Senate desired, and as neither branch of Congress can adjourn for more than three days without the consent of the other, the Senate will have to remain in session. The Senators postponed the vote on the Cuban bill until December 16, and the Speaker of the House declared that Congress shall not adjourn until action is taken on the measure for which it was convened in extra session. The President supports Speaker Cannon. In the House Mr. Williams, the minority leader, attacked the republicans because they were keeping Congress in session without doing business, and demanded that action be taken on his resolution calling for reciprocity negotiations with Canada. Mr. Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, pointed out that the present was not a proper moment to deal with Canada, as she was still smarting under the Alaskan Boundary decision.

The treaty ceding the Isle of Pines to Cuba has been ratified by the Senate. The Treaty of Paris left this island for future determination as to its ownership. In return for naval and coaling stations in Cuba, the United States government confirms the title of the insular republic to the Isle of Pines.

The politicians of Illinois, who have been booming Speaker Cannon for the vice-presidential nomination, have received a set back by a statement issued by the Speaker's secretary, which says, "As Speaker of the House the full mead of his ambition, so far as public office is concerned is satisfied. Even if he would be an available candidate, his nomination is not to be thought of for a moment". He added that the Speaker had no desire for the place now occupied by Senator Frye, president pro-tem, of the Senate.

Former President Cleveland Not a Candidate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Grover Cleveland has sent the following letter to the Brooklyn Daily Eagle :

"PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 25, 1903.—MY DEAR MR. MCKELWAY—I have wanted for along time to say something which I think should be said to you before others. You can never know how grateful I am for the manifestation of kindly feeling toward me on the part of my countrymen. which your initiative has brought out. Your advocacy in the Eagle of my nomination for the presidency came to me as a great surprise, and it has been seconded in such a manner by democratic sentiment that conflicting thoughts of gratitude and duty have caused me to hesitate as to time and manner of a declaration on my part concerning the subject, if such a declaration should seem necessary or proper.

"In the midst of it all. and in full view of every consideration presented, I have not for a moment been able, nor am I now able, to open my mind to the thought that, in any circumstance or upon any consideration, I should ever again become the nominee of my party for the presidency. My determination not to do so is unalterable and conclusive. This you, at least, ought to know from me, and I should be glad if the Eagle were made the medium of ite conveyance to the public. Very sincerely yours,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

The Brooklyn Eagle to the editor of which Mr. Cleveland's letter was addressed, announced to-day that the support it had given Mr Cleveland for the democratic presidential nomination would now be given Alten Parker at present chief justice of the court of appeals of this city.

Mothers and Daughters.

To some minds it appears that the daughters are not always as careful of their parents as they should be. The modern mother seems to us in great danger of being abused. Once her daughter comes upon the stage in long skirts, the former abdicates. All the household shapes itself for the girl, and she takes this as her right. The good mother lets her lie abed in the morning, and then has a warm breakfast for her when she gets up. The mother stays home from the play in order that the daughter may go. She gives up society and makes over her old gowns so that the young woman may go out every night and have more new frocks. When there are men callers in the evening, she cleverly or awkwardly (it depends on her training) effaces herself, goes off to bed or to read alone in the kitchen. When it comes to summer holidays, more than often it is the girl who goes to the mountians or seashore, and the mother stays at home.

Sometimes the young woman takes a money-getting position, works during the day, plays the lady in the evening, spends her salary on herself, while the mother stays closer at home than ever and does the drudgery.

If you will think over the women you know you will find in all these ways, or in several of them, the mother is the slave of the daughter.

—Don't forget that the celebrated eye doctor, J. Angel, will be at the Brockerhoff House, Bellefonte, for one day only, Wednesday, Dec 9, from 9:00, o'clock a m. to 6:00 o'clock p. m. He can make the blind see, come and see if he can't.

—Meta, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs, Edward Rupert, living near Bald Eagle station, was frightfully burned Saturday morning while playing with other children on the second floor of a summer kitchen. The children had matches and in some way Meta's clothes caught fire and were almost consumed. The child's face was unrecognizable, the sight of her eyes being destroyed.

THE MONUMENT QUESTION.

3. If suggestion No. 2 should be adopted, shall we open the proposition to competition or shall we communicate further with Mr. Barnard, who is now employed in Paris upon the statuary for our new capitol building?

4. Shall we adhere to the original idea that this is a memorial of our soldiers and sailors and insist, in the preparation of a design, that space must be left for the names of all the soldiers and sailors who served during the war of the rebellion from Centre county?

Query: Can this object be attained in the limited space which we have at command for the erection of such a monument? It may be well to state here, in connection with this query, that the space in front of the Court House or in the square between the First National bank and the Brockerhoff Block would not have been sufficient for the erection of the Barnard monument as designed, and it is questionable whether sufficient space can be had at the point suggested by our Committee on Location for such a monument. It was suggested by the Committee on Design, or at least by individual members of it, that the Barnard monument or any design of that character might be erected in the public square back of the Court House and between it and the Jail. Is that desirable?

Can we count upon the appropriation of $10,000, by the Commissioners of the County for the purpose mentioned? If so, can we also depend upon permission to erect the monument in the square in front of the Court House, changing the walks if necessary, so as to leave the centre of the square open for the monument and the walks from the corners converging toward the centre. It will be necessary to understand definitely what we have to depend upon in these respects before throwing the subject open to competition, if it is decided that this is the desirable thing to do.

This statement has been made for the purpose of bringing definitely and clearly before your minds the situation which confronts us, the chairman has carefully avoided representing his personal views in any way and is entirely willing to cooperate with the committee and our citizens in carrying out any plan which may be thought to be the best for fairly and fully carrying out the provisions of the several acts of assembly which are involved herein and of making a real memorial of the men who bore the burden and heat of the strenuous days from '61-'5, who made our re-united country a possibility and whose individual names should be, above all things else, cherished and handed down to posterity.

Respectfully submitted, on behalf of the Executive Committee,

JAMES A. BEAVER,
Chairman.

Ball Game.

The Bellefonte Public school and the St. Johns Catholic school played an interesting game of foot ball at Beavers fields, Thanksgiving day which was rather a drawn battle. One of the boys said his side would have won a touchdown but the player fell over a dog as a result the score stood 0 to 0.

There are no other changes at Bellefonte.

Our Many Blessings.

Oh! the many good things that ladened the tables of our American homes on Thanksgiving Day. How thankful we should be to the Giver of all good gifts for his many blessings to the dwellers of our loved nation. Yea, the land has yielded her increase, the forge has glared with the fires of industry, the mills' spindle have revolved with lightning rapidity, the whirl of the wheels in the factory joins in telling the story of a prosperous country wherein the worker is blessed beyond that of the people of any land on which the sun doth shine. Americans, to your knees! And with reverence pray—lest we forget—lest we forget—like other nations have done before us?

STRICKEN BUTLER.

Two Deaths from Typhoid Fever and New Cases are Numerous.

FOUR PHYSICIANS ARE ILL

Town Meeting Held and Considerable Money Raised—The Worst is Yet to Come.

CASES REACH A TOTAL OF 1,550.

BUTLER, November 30.—Three deaths occurred Sunday from fever and new cases are being reported constantly. One doctor has sixty-five fever patients and cannot attend to all Dr. James Grossman broke down under the strain Saturday and Sunday had typhoid fever. Four doctors are now sick, the others being Doctors Minter, Harris and McAdoo Sunday afternoon's public meeting, held in the court house, was highly successful. A total of nearly $6,000 was raised in less than an hour. Those doctors and preachers who are best acquainted with the situation say the worst is yet to come and that there will not be sufficient money to last till the subsidence of the epidemic, which, judging from the possibility of various fever scourges, will last until spring. The expenses of the relief committee will amount to nearly $1,000 per week.

A general relief committee was selected by the meeting to have in charge all of the arrangements during the epidemic for the care of fever patients and the families needing assistance or otherwise. This committee is composed of leading citizens with Charles M. Heineman president, the editors of the Butler papers secretaries, and Thomas P. Snuffin treasurer. The ministers were requested to act as an advisory committed to serve and report as needed.

A meeting of the general relief committee was held in council chamber Sunday evening, and steps were taken to systemize the work of relief. The city was divided into districts with a member of the general committee in charge to direct the work, and one member will be on duty at the council chamber night and day to receive reports.

Reports to the committee Sunday night show fifty new cases and three deaths. As nearly as the committee can estimate the number of cases since the disease first developed is 1,550. Of this number at least two hundred have died. From now on accurate lists of cases and deaths will be kept by the committee.

Responses to appeals for aid in the way of nurses and money have been prompt and liberal. Ten nurses came in Sunday from Pittsburg and more are to follow. Offers of nurses from New Castle and Cleveland and financial aid from Philadelphia and Pittsburg have been accepted by the committee. Nurses from outside towns will be required to bring credentials from their hospitals.

All druggists in the city will fill prescriptions at cost and the undertakers have tendered the use of their ambulances free. Temporary hospitals have been established and they are rapidly being filled with patients.

Quarterly Meeting at the A. M. E. Church.

The Quarterly meeting held at the A. M. E. church Sunday was largely attended all day. At the morning service the Presiding Elder, Rev. B. Wheeler preached on the "Miracles of Jesus." At 3 p. m., Rev. John A. Wood Jr., of the Methodist church preached a very able and soul stirring sermon and assisted in administering the Lords Supper at which thirty-seven communed.

At 7:30 p. m. Rev. Wheeler again preached an eloquent sermon. Monday night the Presiding Elder held his quarterly conference and Tuesday night Rev. J. E. Morris started his revival services.

The Belt Overcoat

Quite the most distinguished looking of the many good overcoats we are showing is this belt overcoat. The belt is on the back only—doesn't go all the way round.

The coat, however, is an "all around" stylish garment; has all the characteristics of the "Sim ready tailored" clothes, style, fine tailoring, best quality.

Fabrics of regular overcoatings, and regular overcoatings that have undergone a rain proof process, availa le for rain or shine without the slick raincoaty appearance that most rain coats present.

Patterns are mostly mixtures with plenty of life and vim or quieter patterns for neater tastes.

Men's Rain Coats

Made plain or with belt in plain and fancy mixtures. Two kinds of material are used in our rain coats; the one by which at a glance you may know the wearer has a rain coat. The other that does not differ in looks from any other overcoat materials. Styles--correct, late, exact—Sim's ready-tailored rain coats have that touch of finish not found in ordinary clothes.

"OUR BOYS"

Do Wear Out So Many, Many Shoes.

Yes—we don't doubt it—but are you getting your money's worth when you buy shoes for the boys, that's the question. The chief quality in Boy's Shoes is wear, and yet boys demand snap and style. Parents should insist that their boys' feet are properly fitted. You cannot judge of the merits of a shoe till it has been worn. Custom has fixed the price of shoes. Your circumstances deterime what price you can pay. We pay a little more than others for our Boys' Shoes, securing all the little extras which tend to strengthen them—better sole leather, linings, etc. By doing so, you must admit, we sell shoes closer than others, as the price we ask you is no more than others ask for poorer shoes, Try a pair. Any of our prices on Boys' Shoes will not prevent your buying. Come, see.

NINETY-EIGHT PERCENT.

There is a fascination about big profits to a business man. But the conservative and cautious trader prefers to have the lesser per cent. of interest and the larger per cent of safety in his investments. There is no buisness man who would not consider it a sound proposition to invest in an enterprise in which absolute loss was impossible and which offered ninety-eight chances in a hundred of a rich profit. The statistics of cures effected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery show that 98 per cent. of cases of "weak lungs" can be absolutely cured. Almost if not all forms of physical weakness may be traced to starvation. Starvation saps the strength. The body is just as much starved when the stomach cannot extract nutrition from the food it receives as when there is no food. "Weak lungs," bronchial affections, obstinate coughs, call for nourishment. "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies that nourishment in its most condensed and assimilable form. If makes "weak lungs" strong, by strengthening the stomach and organs of digestion which digest and distribute the food, and by increasing the supply of pure blood.

A Tragedy Near Patton.

Blain City is a mining village on the line of the North-western Railroad near Patton. The village had a sensation. About midnight Saturday night, Mrs. Ginter, Mrs. Smith and a man named Young were all at the home of the first named and were having a high old time. Albert Burger and three companions went to the house and asked for admittance. They were refused permission to enter. This did not satisfy the quartet on the outside and the tried to force their way in by kicking in the door Mrs. Ginter became enraged at the proceedings and threatened to shoot them if they did not go away. The threat had no effect and the hammering at the door continued. The woman then picked up a revolver and shot through the door. The bullet hit Burger in the head and he toppled over, his companions taking to their heels. Hearing the fall, the inmates opened the door and found the man lying in front of the house, with blood pouring from a hole in his head and in an unconscious condition. Burger was taken care of, but he never recovered consciousness and died at 7 Monday morning. Mrs. Ginter, Mrs. Smith and Young were all three arrested.

Be that as it may, the Pianos we are selling to our many customers each succeeding week can be relied upon for their exquisite sweetness and rich melody, and there is no more sumptuous or appropriate Xmas gift than one of these magnificient instruments. NEW CARTRIDGE CARRIER

American Troops Will Have a Device Suspended From Shoulders.

The war department has commenced the manufacture of a cartridge carrier with suspenders attached with which the entire army, marine corps and national guard will be equipped, says a Fort Riley (Kan.) dispatch to the Kansas City Star. The device will take the place of the present cartridge belt. When the department decided to arm the troops with the new Springfield rifle it became necessary to devise a substitute for the present double loop cartridge belt, as the ammunition for it is carried in clips, with five cartridges to the clip. The fabric is dyed in the same shade of khaki color as the service uniform.

The new belt has nine pockets, each of the proper size for holding two clips, giving a capacity of ninety rounds in the entire belt. One pocket will be used, however, for carrying the first aid package. The suspenders, which are two and a quarter inches wide, remove the greater part of the load from the hips, which is wearying to marching men. The canteen and haversack may be suspended from the belt.

Rock Salt to Stay Fugitive Convicts.

Long barreled shotguns loaded with lead and rock salt will be supplied workhouse guards at Toledo, O., in the future to enable them to intimidate prisoners who desire to escape, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The guards have instructions to use both barrels and not stop until the fugitive has been well salted.

—There is no cough medicine so popular as Foley's Honey and Tar. It contains no opiates or poisons and never fails to cure. C. M. Parrish.

—"I owe my whole life to Burdock Blood Bitters. Scrofulous sores covered my body. I seemed beyond cure. B. B. B. has made me a perfectly well woman." Mrs. Chas. Hutton, Berville' Mich.

JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE IS A HEALTH BRINGER.

Mischter Drucker!—En Dheel dun unsere deitsche Buwe un Mäd welle absolut net meh deitsch lerne. Se kenne die Sproch gut genug babble, awer se kenne se net lese. Se blehme die englische Schule derfor. Awer loßt emol sehne, wie sell is. Es gebt viel pennsylvanische Deitsche, wo schun ihr Großdoty in dem do Land gebore war un was ihr ganz Lewe in gar kee Schul kumme sen, awer se hen doch deitsch lese un ah schreiwe lerne. Sell ware awer noch annere Zeite. Domols sen net schun finfzehjährige Rotznase die Mäd nochgelahfe, sundern se sen Owends derheem bliewe, hen sich in d'r Kich um d'r Disch gehockt un hen deitsch gelernt vum Doty un d'r Mäm. Awer alleweil is sell annerscht. Eb die Buwe recht drocke sen hinnig die Ohre, schaffe se sich en Mädel ah; un se hen ah kee Druwel, eens zu finne, bekohs, die Mäd sen grad so arg for die Buwe, as wie die Buwe for die Mäd. Do werre dann die Owede sellerweg rumgefuhlt. Es gebt bal do, bal dort en somsortige Pärtie un Alles geht juscht nei for Fann. For ebbes Nitzliches hot des jung Stofft kee Zeit meh. Frieher war es d'r Gebrauch, mit die Hinkel schlofe zu gehe, awer nau geht des Kohr in's Bett, wann die Hahne krähe. Un verdollt sei, die Nacht is keenes Mensche Freind. Awer was is zu mache? Die Alte sen ewe schwach un die Junge werre noch schwächer.

Wie gesagt, deitsch babble kenne schier all, awer frogt mer se, eb se ah deitsch lese kennte, dann sage se: „Nee—ich winscht ich kennt."—Nau, sell is en schlechte Ausred. Die Junge welle doch in Allem gescheider sei as wie die Alte, worum sotte se dann net ah deitsch lerne kenne, wann se juscht en guter Wille hätte. Des Englisch, was se oftmals zusammequatsche, is enihau net so arg extra. Do is en Sämpel, was ich d'r anner Dag vun ere junge Frah geheert hab, wie ich se gefrogt hab, eb se net deitsch kennt. Se hot gesaht: „Ei juhsd to spiek d'r Dotsch wonz, awer Ei hab it all vergesse nau."—Is des net en brächtig Geschwätz?

Es gebt Leit, was en halb Dutzed Sproche kenne. Bischuhr, sell werd net dun Jedereens verlangt. Awer sei Mutterspröch sott en Jedes lerne, sell is gewiß. Ich hab se ah gelernt un bin froh derfor, bekohs, se is mir schun efter händig kumme. Derbei kann ich mir zur Noth ah mit em Englische helfe un ich hab mir dessetwege noch nie eigebildt, daß ich schmärter wär, wie anner Leit. For ebaut finfundreißig Johr zurick war ich emol in ere Printing-Offis in Montgomery Caunty. Do is en bechschwarzer Nigger reikumme un hot gefrogt: „Wend Ihr kee deitscher Kalenner kahfe?" Ich hab mich arg verwunnert, wie ich sell geheert hab. Des Deitsch war doch schuhr net sellem Nigger sei Mutterspröch. Awer er war unnig die deitsche Leit ufgewachse un hot sellerweg deitsch gelernt. Un ich hab mich iwerzeigt, daß er es ah hot lese kenne. Nau, wann so en Schwarzer es lerne kann, worum sotte es dann weiße Buwe un Mäd net ah lerne kenne? Es braucht sich doch schuhr Niemand zu schäme, deitsch zu sei. Wann mer awer deitsch is, dann sot mer ah deitsch kenne, sunscht is mer grad so iwel dra, wie en Franzos, was net franzesisch kann.

D'r alt Pit Schweffelbrenner—er is nau tod—war ah in Pennsylvania gebore, awer er hot allfort liewer deitsch geschwätzt un geschriewe, as wie englisch. Er hot gesaht, mer kennt sich viel besser un kraftvoller ausdricke in unserer Sproch. Sei Sticker sen iwerall gern gelese worre, un abbardig wann en Letschen im Gang war, do hot er oftmols den Kerls die Meening gesaht, daß es juscht ebaut schee war. Bischuhr, sellemols hen mir ah noch net des beriehmt Leibel-Lah gehat; awer ich glahb, wann er noch lewe dät, dann dät ihn sell enihau net battere. Er hot allfort gesaht, schwätzt wie Eich d'r Schnawel gewachse is un schreiwt akkordingly.

Ich denk wohl, wann ewe nau des jung Kohr net meh deitsch lese lernt, dann macht sell ah en große Differenz for die deitsche Zeiting-Drucker, weil se dann ewe net viel neie Subskreibers kriege kenne, wann emol die alte todgehe. Awer ich denk, die Drucker wisse sich zu helfe. Wie ich gesehne hab, gebt's in Lebanon en Zeiting, was alleweil schon pärtly in ere fremde Sproch gedruckt werd—ich denk, es is Hungärien, Kauderwelsch oder sell Wolapück.—Die Druder misse ewe mit em Fortschritt nun d'r Zeit ufhalte.

"INCURABLE HEART DISEASE SOON CURED."

To demonstrate the unusual curative powers of his New Special Treatment for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach or dropsy, Dr. Miles will send free to any afflicted person $3.75 worth of his new treatment.

It is the result of twenty-five years of careful study, extensive research, and remarkable experience in treating thousands of heart, stomach and nervous diseases, which so often complicate each case. So certain are the results of his New Treatment that he does not hesitate to give all patients a trial free.

Few physicians have such confidence in their skill. Few physicians so thoroughly deserve the confidence of their patients as no false inducements are ever held out. The Doctor's private practice is so extensive as to require the aid of forty associates. His offices are always open to visitors.

Col. N. G. Parker, ex-treasurer of South Carolina, says, "I believe Dr. Miles to be an attentive and skillful physician, in a field which requires the best qualities of head and heart." The late Prof. J. S. Jewell, M. D., editor of the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, of Chicago, wrote. "By all means publish your surprising results."

Hundreds of "Incurable Cases" cured. Mrs. Frank Smith, of Chicago was cured of heart dropsy after five leading physicians had given her up. Hon. C. M. Buck, banker, of Faribault, Minn., writes, "I had broken completely down. My head, heart, stomach and nerves had troubled me greatly for years, Dr. Miles' Special Treatment cured me after six eminent physicians of Chicago and elsewhere had completely failed."

1000 references to, and testimonials from Bishops, Clergymen, Bankers, Farmers, and their wives will be sent free. These include many who have been cured after from 5 to 30 physicians have pronounced them incurable. For free treatment, free Heart Book and question blank, address Dr. Franklin Miles, Grand Dispensary, 501 to 511 Main St., Elkhart, Ind.

Hundreds are going blind daily, from the need of the proper prescribed glasses and from delaying attention to the eyes from time to time. Nothing will destroy your eyesight quicker than cheap glasses or glasses not properly fitted to your eyes.

Prof. Angel, in the short time he has been visiting this section, has met with marked success. Scores of leading citizens of this community have found relief from his treatment. It is not necessary to travel to Eastern cities for treatment when you can consult an eminent oculist at home.

He will examine your eyes at your home, by appointment, without extra charge

PAINT, USE COSMETICS

This Is the Horse Show's Message to You, Ladies.

A ROSEATE FLUSH NOW THE STYLE

Your Interesting Pallor No Longer In Fashion, It Is "Down and Out," Kate Carew Says Fashionable Women of 1903 Have Grown to Look Dissipated — Two Ways of Using Cosmetics.

Kate Carew, in the following article in the New York World, discusses the artifices employed by society women to enhance their beauty, as seen at this year's horse show in Madison Square Garden:

Has madam an interesting pallor? Then hasten, O madam, to change it for a roseate flush!

For your interesting pallor is no longer in fashion. It is out of style, it is obsolete; it is "down and out," as the pugilistic gentlemen say. In a word, it is as dead as last year's horse show.

The horse show of 1903 has lighted a flame in the cheeks and the lips of women, and that flame is fashion's latest word to the woman of New York—a flame for each cheek and a brighter flame for the chin.

Not within the memory of this generation—perhaps not since the days of wigs and patches—have women of irreproachable character permitted themselves to dip so deeply, with quite so obvious effect, into the pigments of commerce. (I had almost written "quite so unblushingly," but that wouldn't be quite accurate, you know).

Then, it's hey for the complexion artist and the "beauty doctor," and the young man of 1903 can sing, "My love is like a red, red rose" more fervidly than ever it was sung before, for King Cosmetic has come by his own.

And that's the horse show's message to the sex, mesdames. There are other messages, other clarion blasts for an over-bedizenment of person which marks the highest flood in the tide of public ostentation, but the complexions are what strike one first.

To borrow a phrase from the vernacular, they have last year's complexions "faded."

The beauty of the horse show in these social developments is that it presents the evidence for all it is worth. He who runs—that is, he who treads the sluggish whirlpool of the promenade—may read. There they are, the familiar faces in the familiar boxes, and when it is seen that beauty's face has taken on a deeper carmine all around the great glittering ring there's no getting away from the fact that fashion has spoken.

There are two ways of using cosmetics. You stain and polish a piece of mahogany to bring out its interior beauty—that's one way. You paint a fence to disguise the wood—that's the other way. The fashionable woman of former years treated her face as a piece of mahogany. I'm afraid the fashionable woman of 1903 treats hers as a fence.

We really ought to be more respectful to our own faces!

They do these things better in France. Let a Frenchwoman embellish her lips with a touch of carmine, and the effect is gay and sparkling, with no loss to youth and naivete; but after a conscientious tour of inspection round the promenade in Madison Square Garden one is forced to the sorrowful conclusion that Mme. and Mlle. New York when they "make up" their charming lips look—er—well, dissipated.

It's a fact. We have grown to look dissipated, and it's all the fault of old King Cosmetic. It's a great pity, too, for many of the faces under their florid disguise are pretty, and some are dignified and a few almost patrician in a vivacious way, and nearly all are intelligent, and stripped of concealment they would eclipse the faces of women gathered by chance anywhere in the world; but, alas, old King Cosmetic has smeared them all with his crimson fingers and leveled them down to a level that lacks the softness and graciousness that one looks for in the caste of Vere de Vere.

By the way of an exception to prove the rule, the pale, indefinite face of Miss Alice Roosevelt shone from a conspicuous box and offered the unadorned work of nature as contrast to the results of a reckless art. Singular among women of society Miss Roosevelt is as innocent of "makeup" as the palm of one's hand. There is something startling in the simplicity of her appearance in such an environment as the horse show. It reminds one of the studied simplicity of her illustrious father's habits and the family affiliations with the Dutch Reformed church. I've been in that little old church in Washington, and I can see the hair of pastor and congregation rising at the apparition of the horse show complexions of 1903.

Miss Roosevelt's indefinite pallor makes her an extreme type of the unadorned, as the form of her features and carriage of her head make her a very distinguished one, and with only the most delicate accentuation of brows and lashes the president's daughter would present an invaluable object lesson on the art of embellishment without exaggeration.

Takes Everything.

"They say Snatchem takes whatever he sees."

"Good heavens, how hard for his family!"

"Oh, he's not a kleptomaniac. He's an amateur photographer."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

BAN ON CORSETS.

Englishwomen Waging a Crusade Against Time Honored Article.

Perhaps it is too much to say that the "new woman" has inaugurated a campaign against feminine traditions, but it is certain that from Leeds and Birmingham blasts have been sounded upon the trumpets of the anticorset crusade, while in London and the suburbs the new rainy day skirt, which within the last few months has been seen in large numbers, is already working a reform in teaching women to be careful how they walk, says the New York Herald.

Leagues have been formed for the suppression of that first mentioned article, which has so long been regarded as essential to feminine dress, and men are being enrolled among the members.

That women are bad walkers—many being pigeon toed—is declared to be one revelation of the new skirt. Physical culturists, discussing the question, say the greatest offender is the "mannish girl," whose attempt to assume man's ease and freedom is an absurd mimicry. Watch a woman going upstairs at a railway station. In nine cases out of ten they will plod laboriously up, their feet coming down at either side of the stair, toes turned in.

In sitting, too, women are guilty of a number of sins of awkwardness. A stout woman invariably sits squarely, with her feet planted twelve inches apart. The lean woman winds her feet about the legs of the chair or else crosses her legs and thrusts her feet out in front of her, while the small woman either sits with her feet dangling in a helpless way or perches herself on a high seat with one foot touching the ground and the other hooked around the ankle of the first.

LEMONADE THE LATEST DIET

Curious Food Fad of a Club of Women in Portugal.

"The only way to prevent poverty is to convince persons that it is unnecessary for them to eat." So says the Baroness Stienuel, and, what is more, she practices what she preaches, says the Chicago Record-Herald. For many years the baroness resided in one of the Baltic provinces, but recently she removed to Lisbon, and there she formed, with several other women, a club, the members of which have pledged themselves not to eat anything. Two glasses of lemonade a day every member may indulge in, but nothing more.

The baroness says that she has lived a long time on this daily allowance of lemonade, and she defies doctors to prove that she is not as healthy and as vigorous as any ordinary woman of her age. Solid food, she claims, does much more harm than good, and she warns every one who desires to become a member of the club that instant expulsion will be her fate if she dares to eat even as much as a mouthful of bread.

In this strange experiment both the Lisbon doctors and restaurant keepers are much interested and for obvious reasons.

DOGS TO HELP WOUNDED.

Italian Officers Train Collies to Take Them For Use In War.

The use to which dogs have been put by the monks of the Hospice of St. Bernard, in the Alps, in searching for lost persons and administering most urgent aid in the shape of cordials and food has suggested to the Italian army the training of dogs to discover wounded soldiers and to bring to them the water and stimulants they may need after long exposure in the field, writes the Rome correspondent of the New York World.

At the recent maneuvers of the Italian army, which took place near Venice, several collies which have been educated by the officers were tried for the purpose of discovering hidden soldiers lying supposedly wounded in the least accessible points of the field, and wonderful was the sagacity displayed by them in searching for the wounded and gently lying beside them in order to offer the cordials they carried in flasks tied around their necks.

The City Sportsman.

He purchased a dog and a hunting suit, a brand new gun and a lot of shells;
He wrote for terms to a farmer friend, enlisting a trusty guide,
And the day the hunting season began he hustled away, a happy man,
Loaded down with sportsman things, none of which he had tried,
And there he found,
Upon the ground,
Others, like him, full of hope and pride.

They took the field like an army corps, marching through stubble and brush,
The guide was brave, though he faced their guns and promised that he would stay,
But each man knew the danger that lies in wait for a man who closes his eyes
When he shoots, so they kept theirs open wide and marched with joy to the fray,
And then at last,
As the morning passed,
A quail rose up and whirred away.

Each gun went up, and the guide dropped down; the dogs stood still in their tracks;
The triggers were pulled, and the guns' reports resembled a cannon's roar.
The poor little quail turned a somersault; 'twas shot clear through to heaven's blue vault,
And they gathered around to jollify at their glorious gunshot score,
Though none could tell
Whose shotted shell
Had spilled the little fowl's gore!

And that was the only bird they saw; but, nevertheless, today
They have him stuffed and placed in a case in a club not far away,
And they point with pride to this patent fact—they hunted with so much care
They shot neither guide nor friend nor dog, and that is a record rare!

BRYAN ON ENGLISH SOIL

Noted Nebraskan's Method of Sightseeing In London.

MISSES LITTLE AND QUESTIONS ALL

Tradesmen, Policemen and Cabbies, Porters, as Well as Ambassadors and Others of Distinction, Are Thoroughly Questioned — He Absorbs Knowledge at Every Stage and Meets Tipping Problem Without Flinching.

During the course of his systematic sightseeing in England, William Jennings Bryan, the noted Nebraskan, lunched at the Cheshire Cheese tavern, on Fleet street, London, occupying the seat which, according to a tablet in the wall, was the favorite seat of Dr. Samuel Johnson, and remarked that he would know the portrait anywhere because of the family resemblance to Tom Johnson, says Charles Michelson in a special cable dispatch from London to the New York American. Mr. Bryan's lunch consisted of stewed steak; but, being a teetotaler, he had to forego the bitter beer which Dr. Johnson found so acceptable. He copied from the menu the Johnson quotation, "No, sir, there is nothing which has been contrived by man by which so much happiness has been produced as by a good tavern," and indorsed the sentiment. Naturally he bought a book about the place, as he buys a book about everything he sees and, what is more, reads them.

Bryan is about the most conscientious sightseer that ever the world's metropolis identified, and it does identify Bryan. Wherever he goes he is recognized, and there is about as much curiosity about him as there is about the king of Italy, who is also in London. It was this king who gave Bryan his first sight of royalty. Bryan was returning from the Cheshire Cheese when a procession escorting the visiting ruler came along the Thames embankment from Guildhall, and the apostle of Democracy found himself hemmed in by a crowd in front of Somerset House. The embankment was lined with soldiers and policemen, and Bryan soon found what was expected and waited on the sidewalk for the royal carriage to come.

King Edward was not in the procession, but the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught were. So Mr. Bryan had a good view of them; also of the king and queen of Italy. Their majesties looked a good deal bored by the whole proceeding, and something of the same expression was noticed on the face of the great Nebraskan.

His only comment on the royal parade was that the English people seemed to take their dignitaries philosophically.

The next stage in his exploration of London led Bryan to Westminster abbey. The verger took him through and pointed out the tombs of forgotten kings, murdered princes and beheaded notables in the singsong way peculiar to the tribe of exhibitors of famous places. Here, as elsewhere, Bryan was thorough and systematic. First he thoroughly inspected the beautiful building on all sides; then he took the decorations, panels and carvings in the nave and transept, sternly averting his eyes from the monuments and tombs until he had secured a proper impression of their surroundings. Then he went with the verger, and that gowned guide had a new experience. Bryan did not disturb him in his recital of the names and deeds of mere kings and queens, but he cross questioned him closely about every tomb that holds the body of a man distinguished for what he did for the people.

He tarried at the spot from which Cromwell's body was torn after the restoration to be hanged and spent much time in the poets' corner. He would not discuss the effect of so much buried royal splendor, but there was with him all the time his son, William junior, and it was easy from the manner in which he called the boy's attention to the violence of the death of so many great ones of English history to read his mind. He was tremendously impressed by the beauty of the abbey itself, but the record of murders, beheadings and violations of the sepulcher made a stronger impression upon him than did the glory of the dukes and kings of England.

Bryan differs from the majority of American sightseers in London. He really wants to see and hear and does not care who knows that he is a tenderfoot in London. He questions everybody—tradesmen, policemen, cabbies and porters, as well as ambassadors and others of distinction. He pays all charges without objection and meets the tipping question without flinching, but he asks the cabmen all about themselves, their earnings, their history, and absorbs knowledge at every stage of his journeyings. The souvenir books, guides and catalogues which he has already collected would make a first class start for a library of London reference.

—"Don't talk to me about superstition regarding marriages," said the family man. "It's all bosh. I defied all sorts of traditions when I was married. I met my wife on a Friday, I proposed to her on a Friday and we were married on a Friday that also happened to fall on the thirteenth day of the month. That was nearly 20 years ago. Since then everything has been smooth sailing I have prospered in business, luck has been with me. I own the house I live in, I have had little sickness, my wife has borne me children—" "How many!" interupted the cynical bachelor. "Thirteen," replied the married man. The cynical bachelor nearly fell off his chair. "Thirteen!" he exclaimed. "And yet you still have the nerve to say you don't believe in superstition,"

The Marriage of Wm. Hayes Formerly of Lewisburg.

The following account of the wedding of Mr. William Hayes, a native of Lewisburg, and who has relatives here, is taken from the Winona, Mo. Independent, of November 19th:

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Prentiss, Lafayette street and Broadway, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at 7 o'clock last evening, at which time the marriage of Mr. Wm. Hayes and Miss Charlotte A. Prentiss took place.

"The ceremony was performed by Rev. Percy E. Thomas, pastor of the first Congregational church, assisted by Rev. Robert L. Jackson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The Episcopal church was used. Relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony.

"The Prentiss home was very prettily decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and potted plants. The marriage ceremony was performed in the front parlor in front of a handsome bank of palms and chrysanthemums. Roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, palms and ferns went to make the decorations in the others rooms of the house very attractive.

"At the marriage altar the bridal couple were attended by little Misses Frances and Dorothy Prentiss, nieces of the bride and Masters Prentiss and Luthur Bailey, nephews of the bride.

"The bride wore a handsome white gown, while her little attendants wore dresses of white over pink.

"Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served in the dining room, which was decorated very artistically for the occasion.

"Throughout the evening Benz & Clausen's orchestra furnished some delightful music, from where they were stationed in one of the front halls.

"The bride and groom are two of the best known society people of Winona, and their large circle of friends will extend their hearty congratulations.

"The bride is a very popular lady and has resided in Winona for many years. For several years she was librarian at Winona Free Public Library, and made many friends while connected with that institution. Mr. Hayes is a prominent business man of that city, being president of the Hayes Lucas Lumber Company. He is also prominent in local church work and is president of the local Young Men's Christian Association.

"Mr. and Mrs. Hayes left last evening over the Milwaukee road for a trip through the east and upon their return to Winona will reside at 101 East Broadway. Mrs. Hayes reception days will be in February.

"Among those from out the city, who attended the wedding last evening were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hayes, of Lewisburg, Pa; Alfred Hayes; Jr., New York City; Mr. Irvin and son, of St. Paul; Mrs. McDavitte, of St. Paul; Mrs. Demming, Dubuque; Miss Keith, of Chicago.

A Fine Lecture.

The many friends in Bellefonte of Frank H. Gamel, former Y. M. C. A., secretary here, will be glad to know that he is meeting with success in his lecturing tour. The following complimentary notice from the Springfield Republican of Springfield, Ill., speaks for itself.

"Much has been said and much was necessarily expected of the lecture on "The American Boy," by Frank H. Gamel, at the Y. M. C. A. last night, but the audience was not prepared for the rare treat that the lecturer gave in his magnificent presentation of the great subject. With superb illustrations and elegant diction the lecturer drove home time and again strong truths that were elegantly presented. The lecture was one of the best given in this city in many months, and was worthy of the patronage of every wellmeaning citizen. Should the lecturer ever come this way again he will be greeted with one of the largest audiences ever assembled in the city, so enthused were those who heard it last evening. The parents went away with the feeling that there were great possibilities wrapped up in their boys and that it was with them that these great possessions should be cultivated. The boy went away with the feeling that he was to e more than the ordinary every-day boy you meet on the streets and was to be a man, clean, cultured, successful and Christian."

Mr. Gamel also lectured in the Grace M. E., church of the same city to an overflowing audience. His subject was "The Greatest Question in the World."

The Lesson Drawn From the Life of Emma Booth Tucker.

The tragic death of this leader in one of the great religious movements of the time, recalls circumstances in her life from which a profound civic lesson may be drawn.

Her charms of wifehood and motherhood are the cherished remembrances of her immediate friends. Her devotion to the Salvation Army is the pardonable pride of her associates in that organization.

Everyone should have a direct and deep personal interest in the fact that Mrs. Booth Tucker's devotion to an exacting public service did not interfere with the fulfillment of her duties as a wife nor the performance of her obligations as a mother. On the contrary, she was doubtless all the better and stronger as wife and mother for being also a tireless leader among right-minded men and women.

There is a superstition that the good wife will have no inclination to participate in public affairs, and that the good mother will have no time for it. So wives and mothers among the poor let their brains run fallow while they bend over washtubs, and wives and mothers among the rich allow theirs to run fallow while they minister to family pride at social functions. With unconscious irony all this is called "making the home."

Women must not vote. That onerous burden would break in upon the material and maternal duties of the washtub and the afternoon tea and so destroy the home! They must not hold public offices, no matter how crying the need in our public service for feminine thought and feminine action, for with women in politics our children would be neglected, and our husbands would go unkept and unloved, while the home would disappear from our civilization!

Against this barbaric superstition Mrs. Booth-Tucker's busy and useful life was a daily protest.

True, she took no part in civic affairs. Her case cannot be cited, therefore, as a precedent for women in politics, identical at every angle. But no possible public service in civic affairs could be more exacting in its demands upon a woman's time and energy, or more disturbing to wifely and motherly duties, than the public religious work which Mrs. Booth-Tucker did perform so long and so successfully. Yet she leaves seven children, who have never lacked their mother's love and care.

Without detracting in the least from the particular public service to which Mrs. Booth-Tucker's life was devoted, may not that life be fairly cited as a shining instance of the perfect compatibility, with women no less than with men, of private and public service. May we not point to her career as another demonstration of the intimate relationship of wifely and motherly functions of citizenship, of the perfect compatibility of home-making with community building?—Chicago Public.

An Old Man Stricken.

Beech Creek, Nov. 30—Mr. Crider, a resident of Milesburg, is lying seriously ill at the boarding house of Mrs. Mary Slocum. He came into this place shortly before dark Wednesday evening from Lock Haven, where he purchased a horse, which he attempted to ride over the mountain to the north fork of Scootac creek where he is interested in a paper wood job. When he came into this borough he appeared to have lost control of his physical powers and was slowly making his way along the road leading the horse. He was almost stiff with cold and was paralyzed on one side, being unable to use his left arm and his mouth was drawn. Several persons looked after him and he was taken to the home of Mrs. Slocum and a physician called. The borough authorities assumed the responsibility of his care until his relatives could be located. During the night he had several convulsions and it was feared he would die. Saturday he was in a semi-conscious condition and talked unintelligibly. He is a man aged about 60 years. It was learned that his name is Crider and that his wife and daughter were at the camp in Scootac. William DeHaas drove over the mountain Saturday and brought them in a livery conveyance.
